In today's ever-evolving world, seniors are faced with a myriad of challenges. These range from access to medical care to grocery shopping. What used to be everyday activities can now be prohibitive for seniors. We have built a framework of considerations to mitigate some of these challenges and help protect our senior community.

Seven Areas to Consider

Prior to, during, or after a crisis, it is never too early to implement these critical actions.

1. Family Communication

Family phone tree, Facebook family group, video conferencing tools: ie. Facebook Messenger, Zoom, FaceTime, Skype, smart phone, tablet, or computer to aid in video conferencing.

2. Medical Care

Medications and conditions list, medical professionals list, telehealth options, necessity of in person appointments/rescheduling, medical monitoring, access to medications, prescription delivery services, prepackaged medications and delivery, level of medical care desired.

3. Supplies

Variety of groceries such as ready to eat, fresh and shelf stable, CDC recommended cleaning supplies, PPE for necessary outings, hygiene products, extra assistive devices such as glasses, hearing aids batteries.

4. Caregivers

Family caregivers identified, secondary plan if family caregiver gets sick or is not available, extended caregiver network: ie. friends, neighbors and home health care agencies, hospitals of choice.

5. Services

Lawn care, housekeeping, grocery delivery, cooking, laundry, companionship, care management, veterinarian, pet care.

6. Legal

Wills, Trusts, Power of Attorneys, Advanced Medical Directives.

7. Morale and Wellness

Communication with friends and family, connections to church, scheduled meetings, alternate and contingency methods of communicating, life enrichment through mental stimulation, puzzles, games, virtual museum tours.
